Communication Matters – Exchange of Information between Vision Specialist and PCPs

Achieving the best outcome for your patients depends on you having the entire picture of their care. Patients with diabetes are at a significant risk of developing visual complications if their condition is left unmanaged. Having patient information at the time of follow-up visits reduces the risk of errors in your patients' care. Studies show that coordination of care:

- Is a key determinant of overall health outcomes
- Improves patient safety
- Avoids duplicate assessments, procedures or testing
- Results in better treatment outcomes
- Can reduce risk of significant complications related to their diabetes

Studies have shown that up to 63% of PCPs and 35% of specialists were dissatisfied with the communication between them. Specialists want all available information regarding the referral request from referring PCPs. PCPs want follow up information so they can knowledgeably direct further care. Both types of practitioners agree that this information is very helpful in appropriately managing the patient's care.

WHAT WE ASK FROM YOU:

1. Ensure that Specialty referrals include all accurate PCP contact information for follow up.
2. Specialty consult findings are documented and sent to referring PCP in a timely manner.
3. At a minimum, PCPs and Specialists exchange:
 - Medications that the patient is taking to manage their diabetes.
 - Findings from the retinal exam.
 - Next steps needed to best manage the patient's condition.
 - Any work up/procedures done relating to the referral request

If you have questions about factors that limit your ability to share information, please call Sendero Health Plans Network Management at 1-855-895-0475 so we can help.
